I'd like to link to specific pages on my site from others' blogs. The problem is that I don't want others to have to link back to my site via a specific page address, since I've created a home page for them and then want to serve them to their liking via redirects. Would creating a or a solve my issue? A: Yes, the rel attribute is what you are looking for and it is what you should use whenever there is a page identifier in the link: Link You could also use: Link to make it a link in the navbar (when there is one). There is an even better approach if you are able to control the html of your page using this: Link A: Use when you don't have
